Peter Florczak Photography

I have been taking photos since I was a teenager. I had my own B&W darkroom back in 1968. I always enjoyed taking B&W white photos, usually on Tri-X film. The photos had a grainy gritty kind of look that I liked, but truthfully, I was a pretty mediocre photographer. Two things changed that for me. One was that with digital photography I was finally able to get my vision to match my photographs. The other was the practice of making prints. Over the years, as the result of these efforts, I have been fortunete enough to win a number of photography awards.

This book is completely designed, assembled and printed by me.
